THE Editor completes this Volume of the MONTHLY REPOSITORY, in the hope that it will not be deemed less useful or less interesting than those which have preceded it. His gratitude is due to those who have assisted him, either by their Literary Contributions, or by their exertions to extend the circulation of the work. Their co-operation encourages him to persevere; and preparations have been made for enriching the Numbers of the next Volume with a variety of important and valuable communications tending to the promotion of those enlightened and liberal principles to which this publication is devoted.
